queue (n.v.) 排队 queue up

A. long queuing times.

B. changes to the school timetable.

C. dissatisfaction with the menus.

A more imminent change concerns the catering facilities and the canteen.n. 食堂
The canteen is always very busy throughout the lunch period-in fact it's often full to capacity, because a lot of our pupils like the food that's on offer there.

But there's only one serving point, so most pupils have to wait a considerable time to be served.

This is obviously unsatisfactory, as they may have hardly finished their lunch before afternoon lessons start.

A. the number of places producing them

B. the contradictions in them
矛盾

C. the lack of scientific data to support them

Michelle: The observations made by people at the time were interesting, weren't they? I mean, they all gave a pretty consistent account of what happened, even if they didn't always use the same terminology.

Adam: Yeah. I was surprised there were so many weather stations established by that time – so, you know, you can see how the weather changed, often by the hour.

Last month, 25 members of the association from Stanthorpe spent a weekend in Malatte. Our hosts had arranged a great programme.

Ⓑ 11.During the visit to Malatte, in France, members especially enjoyed

A. going to a theme park.

We learned how cheese is produced in the region and had the chance to taste the products.

B. experiencing a river trip.

The theme park trip had to be cancelled,

C. visiting a cheese factory.

but we all had a great time on the final boat trip down the river – that was the real highlight.

Ⓐ 12.What will happen in Stanthorpe to mark the 25th anniversary of the Twinning Association?

n. 协会，社团，联盟

A. A tree will be planted.

This is a special year for the Association because it's 25 years since we were founded.

adj. 市政的

B. A garden seat will be bought.

In Malatte, they're planning to mark this by building a footbridge in the municipal park.

C. A footbridge will be built.

We've been discussing what to do here and we've decided to plant a poplar tree in the museum gardens.

Ⓐ 11.What is the maximum number of people who can stand on each side of the boat?

A. 9 B. 15 C. 18

We already have three staff members on board and on top of that, we can transport a further fifteen people – that's you – around the coastline.
But please note if there are more than nine people on either side of the boat, we'll move some of you over, otherwise all eighteen of us will end up in the sea!

Ⓒ 12.What colour are the tour boats?

A. dark red

We've recently upgraded all our boats.

B. jet black

They used to be jet black, but our new ones now have these comfortable dark red seats and a light-green exterior in order to stand out from others and help promote our company.
This gives our boats a rather unique appearance, don't you think?

ANNIE: OK.How about starting with how useful refrigeration is, and the range of goods that are refrigerated nowadays? Because of course it's not just food and drinks.
JACK: No, I suppose flowers and medicines are refrigerated, too.
ANNIE: And computers.I could do that, unless you particularly want to.

JACK: No, that's fine by me.What about the effects of refrigeration on people's health? After all, some of the chemicals used in the 19th century were pretty harmful, but there have been lots of benefits too, like always having access to fresh food. Do you fancy dealing with that?
ANNIE: I'm not terribly keen, to be honest.
JACK: Nor me.My mind just goes blank when I read anything about chemicals.
ANNIE: Oh, all right then. I'll do you a favour. But you owe me, Jack.

OK.What about the effects on food producers, like farmers in poorer countries being able to export their produce to developed countries? Something for you, maybe?
JACK: I don't mind. It should be quite interesting.

ANNIE: I think we should also look at how refrigeration has helped whole cities - like Las Vegas, which couldn't exist without refrigeration because it's in the middle of a desert.
JACK: Right.I had a quick look at an economics book in the library that's got a chapter about this sort of thing. I could give you the title, if you want to do this section.
ANNIE: Not particularly, to be honest.I find economics books pretty heavy going, as a rule.
JACK: OK, leave it to me, then.

ANNIE: Thanks.Then there's transport, and the difference that refrigerated trucks have made.
I wouldn't mind having a go at that.
JACK: Don't forget trains, too. I read something about milk and butter being transported in refrigerated railroad cars in the USA, right back in the 1840s.
ANNIE: I hadn't thought of trains. Thanks.

JACK: Shall we have a separate section on domestic fridges? After all, they're something everyone's familiar with.
ANNIE: What about splitting it into two? You could investigate 19th- and 20th- century fridges, and I'll concentrate on what's available these days, and how manufacturers differentiate their products from those of their competitors.
JACK: OK, that'd suit me.

Questions 25–30

What is the speakers' opinion of the bike-sharing schemes in each of the following cities?

Choose SIX answers from the box and write the correct letter, A–G, next to Questions 25–30.

	Opinion of bike-sharing scheme
A	They agree it has been disappointing.	shame ↓
B	They think it should be cheaper.	expensive / price
C	They are surprised it has been so successful.	strange! ↑
D	They agree that more investment is required.	cost / spend
E	They think the system has been well designed.	↑
F	They disagree about the reasons for its success.	男女不同点
G	They think it has expanded too quickly.	多，快，*in a short time, fast

	Cities
Ⓒ 25	Amsterdam
Ⓕ 26	Dublin
Ⓓ 27	London
Ⓔ 28	Buenos Aires
Ⓑ 29	New York
Ⓐ 30	Sydney

AMY: Shall we look at some examples now? And say what we think is good or bad about them.
JAKE: I suppose we should start with Amsterdam as this was one of the first cities to have a bike-sharing scheme.
AMY: Yes. There was already a strong culture of cycling here. In a way it's strange that there was such a demand for bike-sharing because you'd have thought most people would have used their own bikes.
JAKE: And yet it's one of the best-used schemes...

JAKE: Dublin's an interesting example of a success story.
AMY: It must be because the public transport system's quite limited.
JAKE: Not really-there's no underground, but there are trams and a good bus network.
I'd say price has a lot to do with it. It's one of the cheapest schemes in Europe to join.
AMY: But the buses are really slow, anyway the weather certainly can't be a factor!
JAKE: No, definitely not.

JAKE: The London scheme's been quite successful.
AMY: Yes, it's been a really good thing for the city. The bikes are popular and the whole system is well maintained but it isn't expanding quickly enough.
JAKE: Basically, not enough's been spent on increasing the number of cycle lanes.(小路, 车道) Hopefully that' ll change.

AMY: Yes. Now what about outside Europe?
JAKE: Well bike-sharing schemes have taken off in places like Buenos Aires.
AMY: Mmm. They built a huge network of cycle lanes to support the introduction of the scheme there, didn't they?
It attracted huge numbers of cyclists where previously there were hardly any.
JAKE: An example of good planning.

AMY: Absolutely. New York is a good example of how not to introduce a scheme.
When they launched it, it was more than ten times the price of most other schemes.
JAKE: More than it costs to take a taxi. Crazy. I think the organisers lacked vision and ambition there.

AMY: I think so too. Sydney would be a good example to use. I would have expected it to have grown pretty quickly here.
JAKE: Yes. I can't quite work out why it hasn't been an instant success like some of the others. It's a shame really.
AMY: I know. OK so now we've thought about...

Write the correct letter, A–I, next to Questions 15–20.

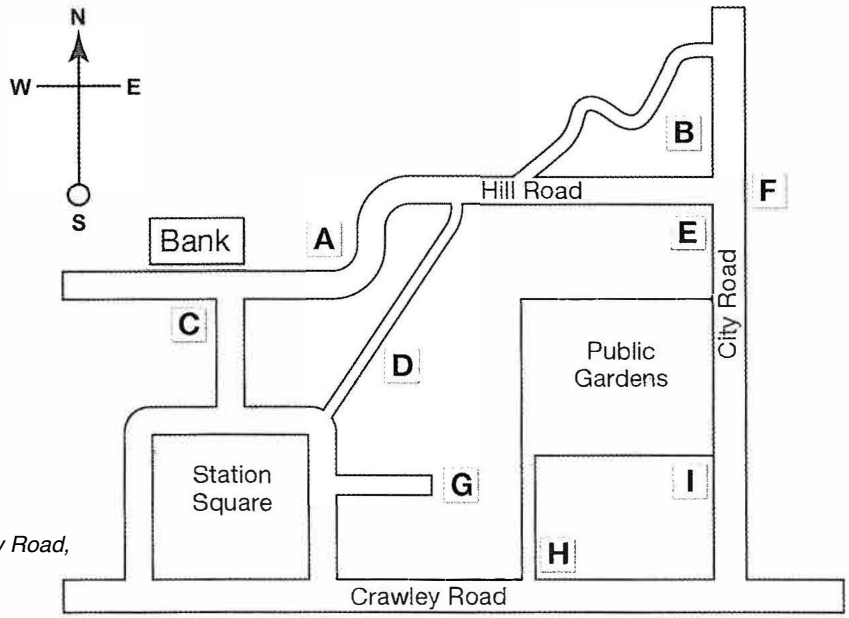
Art and History in the Sheepmarket



Most visitors start from Crawley Road, at the bottom of the map.

Ⓗ 15 The Reynolds House It's on the north side of Crawley Road,next to the footpath that leads to the public gardens. The area's particularly interesting for its unusual sculptures.

Ⓒ 16 The Thumb You'll see it on Hill Road, across the road from the Bank.

Ⓕ 17 The Museum It's on the east side of the Sheepmarket, on City Road. It's on the other side of the road from the public gardens,immediately facing the junction with Hill Road.

Ⓖ 18 The Contemporary Art Gallery The Contemporary Art Gallery is on a little road that leads off Station Square. not far from the public gardens. The road ends at the gallery - it doesn't go anywhere else.

Ⓘ 19 The Warner Gallery It's on City Road, near the junction with Crawley Road,On the same side of the road as the public gardens.

Ⓑ 20 Nucleus

Finally if you're interested in purchasing high quality artwork,the place to go is Nucleus. You need to go from Crawley Road up through Station Square and east along Hill Road until you get to a small winding road turning off. Go up there and it's on your right - if you get to City Road you 've gone too far.

Questions 16–20

Label the plan below.

Write the correct letter, A–H, next to Questions 16–20.

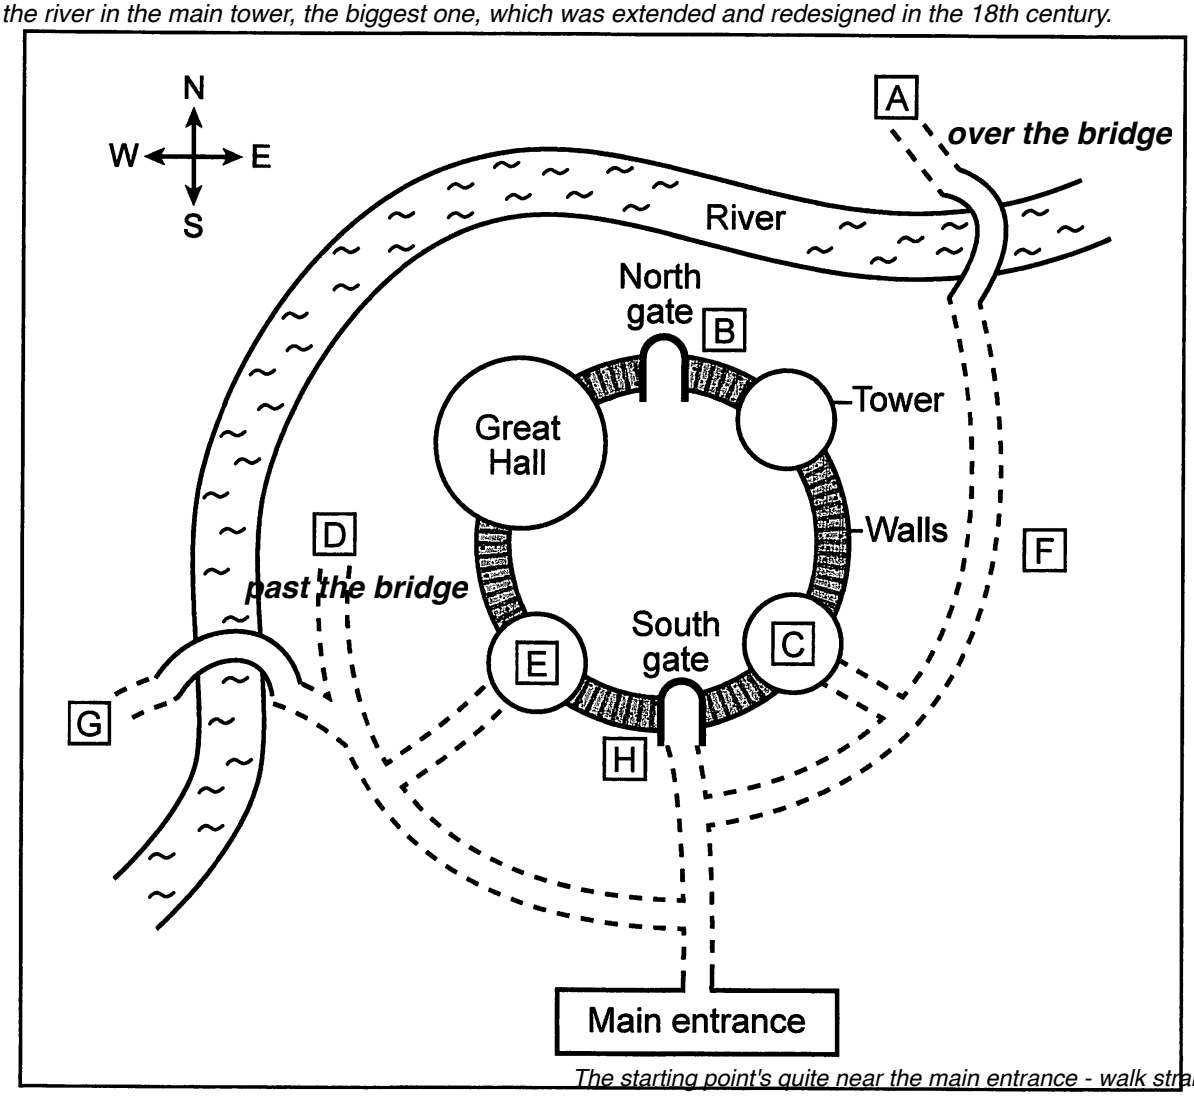
Now if you can take a look at your plans you'll see Branley Castle has four towers, joined together by a high wall, with the river on two sides.
Don't miss seeing the Great Hall.
That's near the river in the main tower, the biggest one, which was extended and redesigned in the 18th century.

Branley Castle



The starting point's quite near the main entrance - walk straight down the path until you get to the south gate, and it's just there. Don't go on to the north gate ... there's no way up from there.

Ⓗ 16 Starting point for walking the walls

Ⓓ 17 Bow and arrow display The quickest way to get there is to take the first left after the main entrance and follow the path past the bridge then you'll see it in front of you at the end.

Ⓕ 18 Hunting birds display If you go from the main entrance in the direction of the south gate, but turn right before you get there instead of going through it you'll see it on your right past the first tower.

Ⓐ 19 Traditional dancing That's right at the other side of the castle from the entrance, and over the bridge.

Ⓔ 20 Shop It's actually inside one of the towers, but the way in is from the outside.
Just take the first left after the main entrance, go down the path and take the first right.
It's got some lovely gifts and souvenirs (纪念品).

Plan of Stevenson's site

adjoining = next to 15.There's a corridor running left from here, and if you go along that, the door facing you at the end is the entrance to the coffee room. This looks out onto the main road on one side, and some trees on the other, and that'l be where you meet each morning.

Ⓗ 15 coffee room

Ⓒ 16 warehouse
仓库

Ⓖ 17 staff canteen

Ⓑ 18 meeting room

Ⓘ 19 human resources

Ⓐ 20 boardroom

16.The factory is the very big room on the far side of the site.
Next to it is the warehouse, which can be accessed by lorries going up the road to the turning area at the end.
You can get to the warehouse by crossing to the far side of the courtyard, and then the door is on your right.

17. This is right next to reception. I can confidently say that the food's very good, but the view isn't. The windows on one side look onto a corridor and courtyard, which aren't very attractive at all, and on the other onto the access road, which isn't much better.

18.You' ll be using the meeting room quite often, and you' ll find it by walking along the corridor to the left of the courtyard, and continuing along it to the end. The meeting room is the last one on the right, and I'm afraid there's no natural daylight in the room.

19. The human resources department is at the front of this building, so you head to the left along the corridor from reception, and it's the second room you come to.
It looks out onto the main road.

20. And finally, the boardroom, where you' ll be meeting sometimes.
That has quite a pleasant view, as it looks out on to the trees.
Go along the corridor past the courtyard, right to the end.
The boardroom is on the left, next to the factory.
