Events in the history of football
A	the introduction of pay for the players	pay - earning/ money/ salary
B	a change to the design of the goal	goal n. 球门, 进球得分/ 目标 v. 射门 shot
C	the first use of lights for matches	first lights
D	the introduction of goalkeepers	goalkeeper (guard the goal)
E	the first international match	first international- different countries/ worldwide
F	two changes to the rules of the game	2 changes rule-: first / second; one/ another; and/also
G	the introduction of a fee for spectators	$ audience, fans
H	an agreement on the length of a game	how long last, minutes

- | | Year | |
|------|------|---|
| ④ 15 | 1870 | For example, 1870 was also the year that football teams started to include a player whose role it was to guard the goal. It's hard to imagine what the game must have been like without someone in that position, isn't it? |
| ⑥ 16 | 1874 | And the following year in 1874 referees were allowed to send players off if they committed certain offences. And also in that year, teams started having to swap ends at half-time. |
| ③ 17 | 1875 | One fact I was interested to discover was that in early football games, the aim was for the scorer to get the ball between two flag posts. And later, between sticks joined at the top with a piece of tape. |
| ⑧ 18 | 1877 | In 1875 that tape was replaced with the solid crossbar that we are familiar with today. |
| ② 19 | 1878 | 1877 saw the founding of further new clubs and the history books tell us that in the same year all the clubs decided to set a limit of 90 minutes for each match. Before that, it was a more casual arrangement. |
| ① 20 | 1880 | And this sometimes caused huge arguments and sometimes fights during matches when one team called the end of the game and the other team wanted to play on to try and score a winning goal. |
- By 1878 the number of teams in the football league increased again.
 In addition, referees started using whistles and electric lamps were installed on certain pitches.
 This was a significant change as games could then be played in the evenings all year round.
- In 1880 clubs began to charge fans for admission to games, even though players were still amateurs and had other proper jobs. That's hard to imagine in the modern professional game, where top players earn significant sums of money from both playing and commercial activities.
